2 THE COURT: Be seated, please. Good morning.

3 MR. HORWITZ: Good morning, Your Honor. Maurice 4 Horwitz, Weil Gotshal & Manges, for the debtors. The first 5 item on today's agenda is the debtors' motion seeking 6 authorization to settle LBHI's equity interest in a reinsurance 7 company, Wilton Re Holdings Limited, ECF number 23638.

8 LBHI owns approximately twenty-five percent of Wilton 9 Re's outstanding shares which it purchased in three phases for 10 an aggregate total of 300 million dollars. The last purchase 11 which was for an aggregate of 122 million dollars at a per 12 share price of fifty dollars per share occurred post-petition
13 and was approved by this Court on January 21st, 2009.

14 By today's motion, LBHI seeks authorization all of its 15 shares back to Wilton Re at a purchase price of sixty-nine
16 dollars per share. This equates to more than 390 million 17 dollars in the aggregate and enables LBHI to realize a thirty 18 percent return on its investment.

19 As stated in the declaration of Jack McCarthy, Sr.
20 that was filed concurrently with the motion, LBHI has concluded 21 in its business judgment that the proposed transaction is in 22 the best interest of its estate and creditors and is the best 23 means of maximizing its investment in Wilton Re. In addition 24 to offering LBHI an attractive return, the proposed purchase 25 price equates to a slight premium of Wilton Re's book value at

1 a time when comparable insurance companies are trading at 2 significantly lower multiples of book value.

3 As stated in the declaration of David Descoteaux,
4 which was filed contemporaneous with the motion, Lazard ran a 5 number of analyses focused on the trading multiples of selected 6 publicly traded U.S. life insurers in order to evaluate the 7 proposed purchase price. Lazard determined that the price per 8 share offered by Wilton Re represents an offer that is both 9 significantly higher than the trading multiples of the only 10 publicly traded U.S. Life Reinsurance Company, Reinsurance 11 Group of America and significantly above the median and mean of 12 the trading multiples of other selected publicly traded U.S.
13 life insurers.

14 In light of the current market comparables, LBHI has 15 concluded that it is unlikely that any parties would be willing 16 to make an above-market offer for what is essentially a highly 17 liquid minority stake in Wilton Re.

18 LBHI's shares are also subject to certain transfer 19 restrictions that would make their purchase less attractive to 20 a third party. For example, a sale of LBHI's shares to a third 21 party triggers a right to first refusal for both Wilton Re and 22 for any shareholders of Wilton Re. Wilton Re's other 23 shareholders could also exercise tagalong rights that, if 24 implemented, may diminish the number of shares that a third 25 party would be required to purchase from LBHI.

1                   It is unlikely, as well, that an alternative means of 2 monetizing LBHI's investment could materialize in the near 3 future such as an initial public offering or a strategic sale
4 as a going concern. Given that LBHI intends to begin making 5 distributions in the near future, LBHI has concluded that it is 6 in its best interest to seize upon this opportunity, to sell 7 its shares at a premium and to accelerate the return on its 8 investment ultimately.

9                   I should note, Your Honor, that LBHI faces no risk of 10 being diluted on account of the tagalong rights just mentioned.
11 The share purchase agreement before the Court today requires
12 Wilton Re to purchase one hundred percent of LBHI's shares 13 irrespective of any tagalong rights.

14                   In addition, it is LBHI's understanding that Wilton Re 15 has obtained waivers of such tagalong rights from the other 16 shareholders of Wilton Re in connection with this transaction.

17                   As noted in the motion, the proposed transaction is 18 subject to certain regulatory approvals from the Minnesota
19 Department of Commerce and the Bermuda Monetary Authorities.
20 Although technically, these regulators have not begun their 21 review of the transaction and will not begin their review until 22 this Court has approved the transaction, Wilton Re has been 23 informed that there will be -- or there has been no negative 24 feedback as of yet.

25                   Your Honor, there are no objections to the motion.

Page 10

1 The creditors' committee has evaluated the proposed transaction
2 and filed the statement in support of the motion. That is ECF 3 24118. Unless Your Honor has any questions, the debtors would 4 request entry of the order approving the motion.

5 THE COURT: I have no questions. I've read the papers
6 including the supporting declarations and the committee's 7 statement and this certainly appears on its face to be an 8 attractive transaction. I approve it.

9 MR. HORWITZ: Thank you, Your Honor. I'll turn the 10 podium over to my colleague, Zaw Win.

11 MR. WIN: Good morning, Your Honor. Zaw Win from Weil
12 Gotshal & Manges for the debtors. The next item on the agenda
13 is the motion of Lehman Brothers Holdings Inc. and Lehman 14 Brothers Special Financing pursuant to Section 105 of the 15 Bankruptcy Code and Rule 9019 of the Federal Rules of 16 Bankruptcy Procedure for approval of the settlement agreement
17 with Merrill Lynch Portfolio Management, Inc. and Merrill Lynch
18 Capital Services, Inc. This motion is listed at ECF number 19 23637. No objections have been filed to this motion.

20 The settlement agreement that is the subject of the 21 motion resolves a dispute between Lehman and Merrill that has 22 come before this Court on several previous occasions, first, in 23 connection with a stipulation provided for relief from the 24 automatic stay; and second, in connection with a motion by 25 Merrill for specific performance that this Court denied last

1 summer.

2           Unless this Court has any specific questions about the 3 factual background of the dispute, I'll get right into the 4 benefits to the estate.

5           THE COURT: You can get right into it. I remember the 6 deal.

7           MR. WIN: As set forth in the declaration of Ronald 8 Dooley that was filed contemporaneously with the motion, the 9 settlement agreement is expected to benefit the debtors in 10 several ways. First, the settlement agreement provides for the 11 portion of the amounts due to LBHI and the Series B bonds, 12 which are subordinate, will be paid in connection with the 13 disposition of each of the five properties that are the subject
14 of the bonds despite the fact that recoveries under the Series
15 B bonds would otherwise be subordinate to Series A bonds.

16           Second, the profit sharing mechanisms contained in the 17 settlement agreement incentivizes Merrill to get the highest 18 return for each of the properties making it more likely that 19 there will be some amounts remaining to pay off the Series B 20 bonds after the Series A bonds have been paid in full.

21           And finally, the settlement agreement will relieve the 22 necessity for the debtors to expend any further funds in 23 connection with the dispute with Merrill.

24           Several of the conditions for closing, notably, 25 Merrill's delivery of the executed confirmation from the

1 trustee and the opinion of bond counsel, have not occurred yet.
2 So the settlement agreement has not been executed.
3 Accordingly, the debtors have made a few modifications to the 4 proposed order just to recognize the fact that they're now 5 seeking approval to enter into an order substantially in the 6 form that was submitted with the motion instead of an executed
7 order. I have a redline of the proposed order if the Court 8 would like to take a look.

9 THE COURT: Please hand that up. Thank you.

10 MR. WIN: As the Court will note, there's a slight 11 change in the first page, again, reflecting the fact that the 12 settlement agreement has not been executed. And then again, on 13 the second page, in the second "Ordered" paragraph, just 14 eliminating the execution dates since it hasn't, in fact, been 15 executed yet.

16 THE COURT: Can you tell me if there's any issue in 17 particular that's allege of the delay?

18 MR. WIN: We understand that there isn't an issue.
19 It's just a question of timing over the holiday. Merrill 20 wasn't able to line up all the necessary consents. But we 21 expect to have everything in order in the next few days.

22 THE COURT: Okay. Fine.

23 MR. WIN: Unless the Court has any questions, the 24 debtor requests that the order be entered.

25 THE COURT: It's fine. I approve it.

Page 13

1                   MR. WIN: Okay. Thank you, Your Honor. The next 2 matter on the agenda is the motion of Benisasia Investment and 3 Properties Ltd. for relief from the automatic stay which was 4 listed at ECF 23614. The debtors had filed a limited response
5 to this at ECF number 24042. I am pleased to report that the 6 debtors and Benisasia were able to reach a consensual 7 resolution of their dispute last night and have a stipulation
8 that we'd be prepared to hand up at the end of the hearing 9 provided for a limited relief from the automatic stay to allow 10 Benisasia to commence an action against LBHI in state or 11 federal court in New York. Unless the Court has any questions 12 about that, we just propose to hand it up at the end of the 13 hearing.

14                   THE COURT: The only question I would have is about 15 the venue and jurisdiction for that proposed litigation. Is 16 that going to be a bankruptcy court litigation or litigation 17 elsewhere?

18                   MR. WIN: We don't expect it to be brought in the 19 bankruptcy court. It likely will be brought in state or the 20 dis -- state court in New York or the district court in New 21 York.

22                   THE COURT: Okay.

23                   MR. WIN: Okay. Thank you, Your Honor. Jacqueline 24 Marcus is going to handle the next matter on the agenda.

25                   THE COURT: Fine. Thank you.

Page 14

1 MS. MARCUS: Good morning, Your Honor. Jacqueline
2 Marcus of Weil Gotshal & Manges on behalf of Lehman Brothers
3 Holdings Inc. and its affiliated debtors. Item number 4 on the 4 agenda is the debtors' motion for authority to exercise the 5 right of first offer regarding securities of Archstone Trust.
6 And that's at ECF number 23620. Jeffrey Fitts, co-head of 7 Lehman's real estate group, filed a declaration in support of 8 the motion and he is present in Court today.

9 There are no objections to the motion, Your Honor. As 10 reflected in the agenda each of Bank of America and Barclays 11 filed their response to the motion, but those responses were in 12 the nature of reservation of rights relating to the Archstone
13 adversary proceeding. And the banks do not oppose the relief 14 requested in the motion. The creditors' committee has filed a 15 statement in support of the motion.

16 I know the Court is very familiar with the facts
17 regarding the right of first offer, but, with your permission, 18 I will very, very briefly summarize.

19 THE COURT: That's fine.

20 MS. MARCUS: Bank of America and Barclays Bank are 21 parties to an interest purchase agreement with ERP Operating 22 Limited Partnership, an affiliate of Equity Residential which 23 is an Archstone competitor, pursuant to which they would sell
24 half their stake or twenty-six and a half percent of Archstone 25 to Equity Residential. Under the documents governing their

1 investment in Archstone, the debtors have a right of first 2 offer to buy the stake at the price the banks contract it for 3 with Equity.

4 In the motion, the debtors requested authorization to 5 spend approximately 1.325 billion to acquire twenty-six and a 6 half percent of Archstone from the banks by exercising their 7 right of first offer. The motion also provided that in the 8 event the Court rules in the adversary proceeding that the 9 debtors were entitled to exercise the right of first offer for 10 the banks' entire interest then the debtors requested authority 11 to purchase the entire fifty-three percent interest.

12 Inasmuch as the Court has not ruled on the merits in 13 the adversary proceeding, the debtors now seek authority to 14 exercise their right of first offer for the twenty-six and a 15 half percent interest in Archstone. Consequently, if the 16 motion is granted after the closing, the banks collectively
17 would own twenty-six and a half percent of Archstone and Lehman
18 would own seventy-three and a half percent. For the reasons
19 set forth in the motion and in the declaration of Mr. Fitts, 20 the debtors believe that the exercise of the right of first 21 offer is in their best interest and should be approved pursuant 22 to Sections 105 and 363 of the Bankruptcy Code.

23 Specifically, the debtors believe that Equity
24 Residential has undervalued Archstone by as much as a billion 25 dollars. There are two consequences of that: first, that

1 means that the debtors would acquire this additional interest 2 at a favorable price; and second, it means that one of the 3 alternatives that was available to the debtors exercising their 4 tagalong rights to participate in the sale to Equity 5 Residential does not make sense from the debtors' point of 6 view.

7 In addition, the debtors believe that the value of 8 Archstone will be adversely affected if they do nothing and 9 have Equity Residential, a competitor, as a partner in the 10 investment. Therefore, they feel it is essential to exercise 11 their right of first offer particularly at a favorable price, 12 in order to maximize the value of their interest in Archstone.

13 Unless the Court has further questions, the debtors 14 request that the Court grant the motion and authorize them to 15 exercise the right of first offer.

16 THE COURT: I have no questions and I approve the 17 motion as unopposed. And I treat the fact that the creditors'
18 committee has given a statement indicating its approval as a 19 sign that this is viewed as being in the best interest of the 20 estate and its creditors. It's approved.

21 MS. MARCUS: Thank you, Your Honor. Item number 5 on 22 the agenda is the joint motion of the debtors and the 23 creditors' committee to extend the stay of the avoidance
24 actions and grant certain related relief. Pursuant to this 25 motion, the debtors seek the following relief:

1                   First, an extension of the order staying avoidance
2 actions which currently expires on January 20th, 2012 to July 3 20th, 2012;

4                   Second, the debtors seek an extension of the time to 5 complete service of process on avoidance action defendants
6 until the later of March 30, 2012, or the time otherwise
7 provided by the bankruptcy rules. This portion of the motion 8 relates primary to a handful of defendants in Austria and 9 Taiwan and has not been objected to.

10                  As set forth in the motion as well as the reply, the 11 debtors have taken full advantage of this day to initiate 12 settlement discussions with avoidance action defendants and to 13 continue the ADR process. That the ADR process has been a 14 success cannot be disputed. As indicated in the twenty-sixth 15 monthly status report filed yesterday by Peter Gruenberger, as 16 a result of mediation, the debtors have achieved settlements of 17 173 ADR matters involving 182 counterparties and generating in 18 excess of a billion dollars for the estate.

19                  Another measure of the success is that out of the 20 sixty-nine ADR matters that have reached the mediation stage, 21 sixty-four of them have been settled. As indicated in Mr.
22 Gruenberger's letter, another fifteen mediations have been 23 scheduled to commence between today and the end of February.

24                  The debtors seek an extension of the stay to enable 25 them to continue to build on the successful ADR process and to

1 resolve pending matters while minimizing the time and expense
2 expended by the debtors and the avoidance action defendants as 3 well as the burden on the Court. The debtors submit that under 4 Section 105 of the Bankruptcy Code, the number and complexity
5 of the actions, the lack of prejudice to any of the avoidance 6 action defendants and the progress achieved to date warrant the 7 requested extension of the stay.

8 The extension of the stay would affect more than 350
9 parties; yet, the liquidators of LB Australia have filed the 10 only objection to the proposed extension. As the Court is well
11 aware, LB Australia is neither an avoidance action defendant 12 nor even a creditor in these cases. As noted in our reply as 13 well as the reply we filed in response to LB Australia's 14 objection to the prior extension motion, LB Australia is not a 15 parties in interest in these cases and therefore is not even 16 entitled to be heard with respect to the stay. I refer Your 17 Honor again to the Second Circuit's decision in Refco and Judge
18 Chapman's decision in Innkeepers as support for the proposition 19 that LB Australia lacks standing here. Indeed, as cited in our 20 reply, during the hearing on June 15th, LB Australia's counsel 21 virtually conceded the point.

22 Like it did in connection with the debtors' prior 23 request to extend the stay, LB Australia contends that it 24 cannot wind up its own estate without "a legal determination"
25 of the Dante program flip-clause dispute. This argument

1 completely ignores the real prejudice in time and money to the 2 actual defendants in adversary proceeding number 3545 who would 3 be forced to start spending real litigation dollars if the stay 4 were lifted as well as the prejudice to the debtors and the 5 burden on the Court.

6 Moreover, as noted by the Court at the June 15th
7 hearing, the issue of interpretation of the Dante flip-cause 8 language has already been decided by this Court. In fact, what 9 LB Australia has in mind is some type of appellate review.

10 At what stage would LB Australia be satisfied that 11 there is a "legal determination"? It lost on its motion to 12 intervene in the avoidance action in this court. Its appeal 13 was dismissed by the district court. And LB Australia has 14 appealed that decision to the Second Circuit. One can only 15 imagine that LB Australia envisions the same appellate process 16 with respect to the flip-cause dispute.

17 LB Australia also argues that the pace of ADR 18 settlements has slowed and therefore it is "clear that the 19 remaining derivatives contracts that could have been readily 20 settled would have been settled". That's a quote from their 21 objection in paragraph 8.

22 As reflected by the progress reflected in the 23 Gruenberger report, the debtors continue to make substantial 24 progress. Since the last motion filed for extension of the 25 stay, the debtors have continued to commence ADRs at the rate

1 of one every two days. And the debtors have kept up that pace
2 notwithstanding the fact that during the past six month period, 3 the debtors formulated, negotiated and obtained confirmation of 4 their plan of reorganization. Now that the plan has been 5 confirmed, the debtors and their professionals will be able to 6 devote even more time and energy to resolution of these 7 disputes and the debtors fully expect to settle many more of 8 them. However, in order to be able to devote their energies to 9 the settlement and ADR process, it's essential that the stay be 10 continued.

11 LB Australia's last point is that the stay should be 12 terminated because Lehman has not taken any steps to commence 13 ADRs with respect to Dante program flip-clauses with respect to 14 the Australian noteholders. LB Australia fails to take into 15 account that another alternative to the debtors is negotiation.
16 Indeed, there is one Dante series in which LB Australia has 17 notes in which the debtors are close to reaching a negotiated 18 settlement even without the commencement of an ADR. And 19 indeed, LB Australia, among others, is expected to sign a 20 settlement agreement with respect to that series shortly.

21 As noted in our reply, there have been other ADRs
22 commenced with respect to other Dante program series. LB 23 Australia's speculation that Lehman has "no intention of 24 initiating ADR procedures with respect to the Dante program
25 flip-clause with the Australian noteholders is just that, mere

1 speculation, and, in fact, it's not correct.

2 In conclusion, Your Honor, LB Australia, which is not 3 even a defendant in an avoidance action, should not be 4 permitted to singlehandedly derail the ADR and settlement
5 process that has been so successful to date. The issues raised 6 in the objection pale in comparison to the success of the 7 debtors' efforts, the potential for continued success resolving 8 these matters, and the prejudice to the debtors and their 9 estates and the actual avoidance action defendants in the event 10 that there were a full scale resumption of the litigation. As 11 a result, the debtors request that the objection be overruled
12 and the Court extend the stay for an additional six months.

13 On December 6th, Your Honor, we filed a revised 14 proposed order, docket number 24098. The change is that we 15 added a new paragraph which is the second decretal paragraph on 16 page 3 of the blacklined order. I don't know if you have it in 17 front of you.

18 THE COURT: I don't have it in front of me.

19 MS. MARCUS: I have a copy, if I may?

20 THE COURT: Please. Thank you.

21 MS. MARCUS: The new language is on page 3 which,
22 actually, on your copy is marked as page 6. It makes clear 23 what the timetable will be upon the expiration of the stay.
24 The new paragraph provides that unless the stay is extended by 25 another order or the parties otherwise agree, each avoidance

1 action defendant would be required to answer or otherwise
2 respond to the complaint by September 15th, 2012 or thirty days
3 after the filing of any amended complaint. The debtors request 4 that the Court enter the revised order.

5 THE COURT: Okay. I have a few questions. And I
6 think it should be noted that Lehman Brothers Australia filed a 7 Chapter 15 case in the southern district of New York as a case
8 related to the Lehman Brothers bankruptcies and that the 9 Chapter 15 has been assigned to me. No matters have yet 10 transpired with respect to that filing.

11 I also want to note that I have some -- apparently, a 12 lot of people want to leave at this moment. But why don't we 13 let them continue to file out. Lehman Brothers Australia 14 should not be offended. I'm not. But we just lost about 15 twenty people.

16 I do have a question about the debtors' intentions 17 with respect to the portfolio of litigation that is subject to 18 the proposed extended stay. I recognize the decretal paragraph 19 that is blacklined noting that unless there's a further order, 20 things may start happening in September. Is it necessary for 21 there to be a stay as to all of the litigation? I mean, in 22 effect, one of the questions that I have here is that while ADR 23 is indisputably a success -- and the results speak for 24 themselves as being beneficial to the estate and also 25 beneficial to the Court, I might add, because this means that

1 matters that might otherwise be burdening the Court are being 2 managed in a private fashion.

3 One of the things that Lehman Brothers Australia is, 4 in effect, saying -- and they'll speak for themselves even 5 though there are questions as to their standing -- is that the 6 stay as to us is prejudicial because we're looking for a 7 toehold as to a legal issue the resolution of which is 8 important to the administration of our estate.

9 Your papers indicate and your oral argument today 10 indicates that negotiations are proceeding with respect to the 11 flip-clause issue as to certain aspects of the Dante program.
12 But it's not clear to me whether or not that has anything to do 13 with the litigation that LBA cares about. My sense is it does 14 not. But you can clarify that. Nor is it clear to me how many 15 of the cases that are being made the subject of this proposed 16 stay are Dante-related litigations or litigations that 17 otherwise relate to the flip-clause issue.

18 So I've said a lot but what I'm really trying to get 19 my arms around is what this really means in terms of the number 20 of cases that are affected and the practical benefits to the 21 debtor in terms of managing this portfolio of litigation in 22 having a stay that applies across the board.

23 MS. MARCUS: Okay. I'll do my best to answer your 24 questions, Your Honor. One of your questions was did the 25 settlement that I alluded to relate to the matters in which LB

1 Australia is interested. And some of them do. Some of them to 2 date and undoubtedly more of them in the future. So, for 3 example, I think it was in their -- the LB Australia objection 4 to assumption of executory contracts where they noted that 5 there were six series of Dante notes that they own. One of 6 those series, which is a series in which I believe LB Australia 7 has its largest position, is the one that is within inches of 8 being settled at this moment.

9 So the effect on the litigation is that if matters get 10 settled, the scope of the litigation or any particular 11 litigation may be narrowed. The adversary proceeding that LB
12 Australia claims affects it indirectly is one in which there
13 are a hundred -- I think it's a hundred defendants or nearly a 14 hundred defendants. So it is possible that the process of 15 settlement will result in one or more, hopefully more, of those 16 defendants settling out of that litigation therefore narrowing 17 the scope of that matter.

18 The one that I can answer -- and maybe my partners,
19 Mr. Slack can, is how many of the cases are Dante-related 20 litigation.

21 MR. SLACK: There's one major mass action that 22 contains all of the Dante --

23 MS. MARCUS: That's the 3545 --

24 MR. SLACK: Exactly.

25 MS. MARCUS: Then it's that one.

1 MR. SLACK: And it contains the hundred defendants.

2 MS. MARCUS: Your Honor, as to the other matters, I'm 3 sure Your Honor is aware, the defendants to those other matters
4 haven't objected to a continuation of the stay.

5 THE COURT: Right.

6 MS. MARCUS: And I believe that the creditors'
7 committee which, for example, is handling the LMA actions is 8 involved in negotiations regarding settlement of those actions.
9 So even though they're not part of the formal ADR process or 10 may not be, there's still a benefit to preserving the status
11 quo on the litigation front and enabling the creditors' 12 committee with respect to those actions to continue their 13 discussions.

14 THE COURT: Do individual defendants have the 15 unfettered right to seek relief from this blanket stay to the 16 extent that it can be demonstrated that a party is prejudiced 17 or that the stay is no longer a useful exercise because the 18 parties have negotiated to frustration?

19 MS. MARCUS: I believe that the order provides that 20 parties -- defendants can seek to have the stay terminated
21 before the, in this case, six-month extension.

22 THE COURT: And have defendants contacted the debtors 23 with respect to this to express any comment or position or has 24 there simply been no objection by a defendant?

25 MS. MARCUS: There were two. One led to the change in

1 the language in the order which was -- this particular law firm
2 at least wanted to make sure that they knew what would happen
3 when the stay ended in terms of time period. And another one 4 who is a defendant that has not yet been named but has been 5 identified as -- represents someone who has been identified as 6 a noteholder was concerned that the language, that new 7 language, not shorten the time that they would otherwise have 8 to answer or move. And so, in a separate, basically, side 9 letter/exchange of e-mails, we confirmed that that would be the 10 case and they would have the necessary thirty days to respond 11 when they were added as a defendant.

12 THE COURT: Okay. Thank you.

13 MR. COHEN: Your Honor, David Cohen, Milbank, Tweed, 14 Hadley & McCloy, here on behalf of the official committee of 15 unsecured creditors as a joint movant. There's one small point 16 that I want to briefly address. The LBA objection seems to 17 suggest that the ADR process has run its course and if these 18 cases would have settled they would have settled by now. I'd 19 like to refer the Court back to the twenty-sixth status report
20 that was received yesterday and have the Court note that over 21 the next six weeks, there are an additional fifteen mediations 22 that are on the calendar. This is a robust process. It is 23 working. There is nothing broken with it. We agree with the 24 Court and with the debtors that it's been an overwhelming
25 success. We see no reason to change the status quo.

1                   THE COURT: Thank you. I'll hear from counsel for 2 Lehman Brothers Australia notwithstanding the fact that the 3 debtor takes the position that you have no standing to be heard 4 here.

5                   MR. SELIGMAN: Your Honor, we are here in the 6 unenviable position at being the only objecting party to this.

7                   THE COURT: What gives you standing to object since 8 you're not a party and your motion to intervene was denied and 9 the district court effectively stripped your rights and you're 10 now pleading for some kind of relief in the court of appeals?

11                  MR. SELIGMAN: Your Honor, two things on that. And 12 there's one at least new fact which is there's two adversaries 13 amongst all the various adversary proceedings here, there are 14 two adversaries that we've been sort of talking about. One is 15 3545 which is the adversary which is what I'll call sort of the 16 Dante flip-clause adversary proceeding. The defendants in 17 there are two collateral trustees and approximately ten of 18 these SPVs which are basically sort of pass-through creations.

19                  In addition, there's 3547 which is -- and I'm sorry.
20 3545 is obviously the one where the request by LBHI was the 21 termination of the flip-clause issue. 3547, that's the 22 adversary where it's brought against a larger group of 23 defendants. In that proceeding, the swap was unwound and 24 monies were actually paid out to noteholders. So part of that 25 proceeding is not only a request for declaration on the

1 enforceability of flip-clause but also a recovery action
2 against noteholders who've received monies.

3 Since we were last before Your Honor, we were 4 contacted through Citibank and an intermediary that this second 5 adversary, 3547, did relate to funds that actually LB Australia
6 did receive. So that 3547 is actually against a -- it's 7 against named defendants and also a class of noteholders who 8 received funds, apparently erroneously as they allege. We did 9 inform, after we received notice, that there was this 10 proceeding and that it related to funds that we'd received. We 11 did provide notice to the debtors in November that -- 'cause 12 they were in the process obviously doing discovery to find out 13 who the defendants were. We did notify them that we were 14 actually a party who had received funds under this. And we 15 were willing to accept service if they so chose to do so.

16 So, as a technical matter, we are, though not 17 necessarily named, we are in the class of defendants that did 18 receive funds under 3547. And so, I think that's a new fact in 19 terms of standing as a party with respect to one of the 20 adversary proceedings that is --

21 THE COURT: Without going too far down this path --

22 MR. SELIGMAN: Yes.

23 THE COURT: -- your client is the entity in Australia 24 that's in administration. And you act as counsel to the 25 liquidators, is that correct?

1 MR. SELIGMAN: That's correct, Your Honor.

2 THE COURT: That being so, how does a claim against 3 creditors of your estate give your client standing in any 4 litigation?

5 MR. SELIGMAN: Well, I would say, Your Honor, that 6 there's two ways in which we have capacity here. First, also, 7 we are actually a holder of some of the very notes that are at 8 issue. So all the litigation against the collateral trustees 9 and the noteholders with respect to the enforceability of the 10 flip-clause, we are actually a holder of some of these notes
11 ourselves, approximately seventeen million. The -- and then 12 the second issue is that other noteholders to the extent that - 13 - and depending on how the flip-clause is ultimately resolved, 14 may have claims back against the LB Australia estate for the 15 amount of -- for various claims that we cited in our pleadings.
16 We have also -- the LB estate -- we have also filed contingent 17 claims against LBHI for a contribution to the extent that the 18 LB estate is liable. So we have filed those claims, too, as 19 considered contribution claims against the estate.

20 THE COURT: To be clear, though, is it more correct
21 that LBA is not a defendant in the adversary 3545 nor is it a 22 defendant in adversary 3547?

23 MR. SELIGMAN: On 3545, yes, it is not a defendant.
24 On 3547, I would actually argue although we're not named, it 25 was brought against a group and a class of people who received

1 money. When the complaint was filed, LBHI obviously didn't 2 know who those recipients were. And part of what they've been 3 doing over the past year or so is conducting discovery to 4 ascertain who those noteholders are. I presume at some point 5 they will be amending their complaint and serving people and 6 naming them as actual defendants 'cause as of -- they're 7 probably in the process of identifying the actual recipients 8 and will so name them as defendants. But --

9 THE COURT: So are you acknowledging here publicly 10 that you are vulnerable to a claim that LBA should turn over 11 property to the estate?

12 MR. SELIGMAN: Well, we would contest the substance --

13 THE COURT: But you're --

14 MR. SELIGMAN: -- but, yes, we are acknowledging 15 that --

16 THE COURT: You're acknowledging that you received 17 distributions in your capacity as a noteholder although you are 18 not named as a defendant in 3547.

19 MR. SELIGMAN: That's correct. And we have so 20 notified that to the debtors in writing.

21 THE COURT: Okay.

22 MR. SELIGMAN: Your Honor, just briefly with some 23 other points. We haven't -- the LB estate, as Your Honor has 24 noted, is, in effect, stuck in being able to complete its 25 windup and its administration. We have not challenged the

1 success of the alternative dispute resolution program. The 2 numbers speak for itself. Obviously, the -- not only do they 3 need time to do it in a methodical and organized process but 4 certainly over the past six months, they've been focused on 5 their plan of reorganization which obviously consumed a great 6 deal of time.

7 I think, Your Honor, though, at some point with the 8 stay, it's a question of balancing the benefits to the debtors 9 and the estate for a -- as you said, a blanket stay in 10 comparison to the relative harms that may exist with respect to 11 other parties. And I would argue, Your Honor, that at this 12 point with the stay being in place for approximately fifteen 13 months and this request for another six months that now is the 14 time that they've emerged -- or in the very near future that 15 the stay should be lifted at least with respect to the 16 adversary proceedings or at least just with respect to us as 17 parties with respect to those adversary proceedings. And I 18 would say so, Your Honor, because of the harm to us that we've 19 noted in terms of the fact that we can't move forward with our 20 estate, the fact that the confirmation process is behind on the 21 debtors' side. To date, there really hasn't been any 22 alternative dispute resolutions with respect to the notes in 23 which we have an interest.

24 THE COURT: Have you, on behalf of your clients, 25 affirmatively sought to engage in an ADR process in order to

1 negotiate some kind of resolution that would be beneficial to 2 your estate?

3 MR. SELIGMAN: Absolutely, Your Honor. We have 4 reached out over the past several years. We've brought our 5 clients from Australia here to New York to meet with the 6 debtors. The last meeting, I believe, was probably about a
7 year ago when the -- in the UK when the flip-clause litigation
8 was under consideration by the UK Supreme Court. And nothing 9 really has happened since then.

10 The liquidators were trying as best as they could to 11 also serve as an intermediary between LBHI and all of these 12 various noteholders who have claims against the Australian 13 estate to try and put people together to try and see if we can 14 work a holistic resolution. And we remain willing anytime 15 anywhere to be able to do that. We'd do that as soon as we 16 could get someone from Australia on a plane here. We would do 17 that immediately. But to date, none of that has happened.

18 The one potential -- and I don't want to get into 19 settlement discussions, but the one potential settlement of a 20 Dante-related issue that was mentioned, that's one where it's 21 clear that the LBHI estate is out of the money. And so, the 22 flip-clause issue is irrelevant to that because the flip-clause
23 only matters if LBHI is in the money. So that one is a 24 completely separate issue.

25 But on the core issue of the flip-clause and the Dante

1 litigation with respect to our noteholders, that has been on 2 ice. And we would love to be able to do that. And our point
3 is that if the stay has been in place for this long and there
4 hasn't been any -- in the past year, any discussions or any 5 instigation of an ADR process, we don't know what's going to 6 change. And given that, we see that if they're not intending 7 to do that -- certainly, if we were engaged in that, we would 8 not be here arguing that that litigation should commence. And 9 so, we only want the opportunity to try and have that happen 10 and get the issue decided how ever it's decided so that the 11 liquidators can fulfill their fiduciary duties. And --

12 THE COURT: Do the liquidators have the discretion to 13 settle?

14 MR. SELIGMAN: They do. I'm not an expert on what the 15 Australian rules are for settlement. But, yes, they have the 16 authority to settle. I'm sure there are rules and mechanisms 17 for how they go about getting court approval from the 18 Australian court. But obviously, we have the ability to 19 settle; otherwise we wouldn't have reached out and tried to 20 engage in settlement discussions in the past.

21 The last point I'd just mention again about 3545, it's 22 not this hundred defendants. It's two collateral trustees.
23 They're the real parties in interest. They're the ones who 24 litigated the flip-clause litigation in the UK, this being Bank
25 of New York. They're the ones who litigated the Mahogany

1 dispute previously before Your Honor. The other ten defendants
2 to SPV for this series, for that series, again, their share 3 into these is probably one person sitting at a desk in 4 Luxembourg or something like that who just gets a fee for being 5 a director of an SPV. So they're not going to really be a 6 party to the adversary proceeding. So I think if the debtors
7 are not going to try to engage in either ADR procedures, 8 mediation, settlement discussions, we just don't see that 9 things are going to change and we'll be back here in six 10 months. And we would argue that this issue should go forward 11 especially since it's an issue that's a relatively 12 straightforward legal issue. The Court has heard it before.
13 And the briefs would be relatively easy to submit to Your 14 Honor. So we don't see a huge amount of prejudice on this 15 particular issue.

16 THE COURT: Tell me the status of your court appeals 17 proceeding and to what extent do you even have the ability to 18 re-enter the foray here while you are litigating your right to 19 intervene in the appellate court? Haven't you lost twice on 20 the very issue that you're now urging me to, in effect, 21 reconsider because to grant your objection to the extension of 22 the stay is, in effect, to give you the ability to intervene in 23 the litigation which I previously denied as an interlocutory
24 matter and to allow you to energize that litigation as a party
25 for your own purposes thereby seeking to use it as a platform

1 to relitigate an issue that I have already twice ruled on and 2 use that as a platform for further appellate review. That's 3 exactly what I said no to quite a while ago which the district 4 court said was interlocutory and what you're now seeking to 5 pursue at the court of appeals level. Why should I even hear
6 you now? Don't you need to wait until the court of appeals 7 rules on the matter that you're prosecuting there?

8 MR. SELIGMAN: Your Honor, I don't believe so. And 9 the reason why is because when Your Honor did originally deny 10 our motion to intervene, you did do so without prejudice --

11 THE COURT: Absolutely.

12 MR. SELIGMAN: -- given the fact that things may 13 change or the fact that there was a stay that was a stay that 14 was going to come up again for renewal. And so, I don't 15 believe we're -- I don't believe we're precluded on that score.

16 I would also mention, Your Honor, that our interest 17 really is in -- and perhaps I was actually thinking about this, 18 Your Honor, as I prepared this argument. When I was last 19 before Your Honor, I probably didn't convey our position as 20 articulately as I could. Our desire is to get this issue
21 resolved, again, one way or the other. If Your Honor were -- I 22 don't think we necessarily need to be a party to the 23 proceedings. If the matter was litigated and it was litigated 24 between the debtors and the collateral trustee and they 25 submitted briefs, I think we would be fine with that. Our

1 interest is not interjecting another party that's going to file
2 another set of briefs that's going to engage in other aspects
3 of things. We're just interested in getting the issue 4 resolved. And the problem is, is that although Your Honor has 5 ruled on this issue before, it was in a different adversary
6 proceeding. I don't expect Your Honor would come to a 7 different conclusion. But at this point in time, the 8 collateral trustee is subject to a UK decision saying that the 9 money should go to the bondholders and yet, they know Your 10 Honor's ruling in a different adversary proceeding. And so,
11 they're not -- they can't proceed with making any distributions 12 or winding up. And so, I think that they're just looking for 13 clarity in this particular adversary proceeding, 3545 (sic).

14 THE COURT: Well, you're speaking as if you're in the 15 head of the collateral trustee and speaking as if you are the 16 collateral trustee. Do you have a clue as to what the 17 collateral trustee wants or believes or thinks is right?

18 MR. SELIGMAN: We have spoken certainly to the 19 collateral trustee. I don't want to necessarily speak for them 20 but I do know that they have communicated to us that until 21 there's a resolution of this matter collectively -- they 22 recognize the UK decision. But until there's a resolution 23 here, they don't want obviously take the risk of complying with 24 the UK decision but being in violation of the stay or being in 25 violation of Your Honor's previous ruling. So --

1 THE COURT: Well --

2 MR. SELIGMAN: -- they have at least communicated that 3 to me.

4 THE COURT: Well, isn't it notable that the collateral 5 trustee does not oppose the extension of the stay for six 6 months?

7 MR. SELIGMAN: Well, from their perspective, I don't 8 think that's particularly notable because --

9 THE COURT: I do.

10 MR. SELIGMAN: Well, I would say they right now -- the 11 status quo isn't necessarily hurting them in the sense that 12 there's money set aside and the passage of time doesn't really 13 matter to the collateral trustee.

14 THE COURT: Have you made demand that the collateral 15 trustee sit down with the debtor as part of an expedited and 16 diligent ADR process in which you might participate and that 17 that be done promptly so that you can move ahead with the 18 administration of the LBA estate?

19 MR. SELIGMAN: I myself have not. Our --

20 THE COURT: No. But has anybody done that?

21 MR. SELIGMAN: You know what, it may have -- I don't 22 want to misspeak. That specific request may have come from our 23 Australian client. I just don't know. But we have certainly 24 attempted in speaking with LBHI to have discussions and we 25 would love to have discussions tomorrow.

1                   THE COURT: What is your real objective here? I know 2 that the Chapter 15 case was filed on Friday. I don't know if 3 that was coincidental to today's argument but I certainly took 4 note of it as did the newspapers. What are you trying to 5 accomplish in the southern district of New York that would 6 facilitate the administration of the LBA case in Australia?

7                   MR. SELIGMAN: Your Honor, it was coincidental. There 8 are some other matters and potential resolutions with other 9 parties that I'm not at liberty to publicly disclose.

10                  THE COURT: Fine. I'm not trying to put you --

11                  MR. SELIGMAN: Yeah.

12                  THE COURT: -- on the spot.

13                  MR. SELIGMAN: But it was not --

14                  THE COURT: And we haven't had -- we have had no
15 proceedings whatsoever with respect to that separate Chapter 15 16 case. But I think it is publicly disclosed to the parties in 17 the litigation. I'm going to publicly disclose it now that 18 Justice Peter Jacobson of the federal court in Sidney, 19 Australia issued an opinion in December of last year relating 20 to the LBA case. And attached to that opinion was a letter 21 addressed to me as a result of that letter, which initiated 22 court-to-court communication, Justice Jacobson and I spoke by 23 telephone and were reported to the parties in the litigation 24 the general outlines of that conversation. There's no need to 25 go into it here. But I think it notable that the Court in

1 Australia and the Court in the United States have had some 2 initial conversations about possible future cooperation and 3 communication between the two Courts. It is not at all clear 4 at this juncture whether anything substantive will ever be 5 discussed by the two Courts or whether there will be a need for 6 such communication at any time in the future. But at least the 7 opportunity for some Court to "dialogue" has been established.
8 I wanted that to be clearly understood on the public record.

9 But it's also completely obscure to me at the moment 10 as to what you're trying to accomplish here other than to make 11 some trouble.

12 MR. SELIGMAN: Your Honor, in all sincerity, we are 13 really not trying to make trouble. We really are trying -- the 14 liquidators haven't been able to move forward in the resolution 15 of their estate because the contingent claims against their 16 estate relating to this flip-clause issue are such a potential 17 large portion of the claims against their estate. And we -- at 18 the end of the -- the liquidators are looking for resolution.
19 At the end of the day, if there's a resolution that says that 20 the flip-clause -- that this money belongs to LBHI -- well, I 21 guess, the liquidators wouldn't be happy 'cause the amount that 22 they would be able to distribute in their estate would be -- or 23 the amount of claims they would have would be larger. At the 24 end of the day, it is what it is.

25 We are looking for resolution because the liquidators

1 do have a fiduciary duty and a court directive to wind up their 2 estate as efficiently and as administratively expeditiously as 3 they can. And we are really just looking for resolution -- a 4 holistic resolution so that the money can be distributed,
5 somebody in claims can be determined. That's really what we're 6 after. And how ever it plays out is how it's going to play 7 out. And that's really what we want to seek. And that's been 8 our effort to just try and get the issue decided in the right 9 way.

10 THE COURT: It seems to me that's best accomplished by 11 means of participating in the ADR program.

12 MR. SELIGMAN: Your Honor, we would be pleased to 13 commence -- to have that process commence with us. We would be 14 happy to coordinate with the Belmont noteholders, with the 15 collateral trustee, bring our clients from Australia here. We 16 would be willing to do that tomorrow.

17 THE COURT: All right.

18 MR. SELIGMAN: Thank you, Your Honor.

19 MS. MARCUS: Just a couple of points, Your Honor.
20 First, LB Australia acknowledged that the Court should be 21 balancing the benefits and harms to other parties. And in my 22 notes, I underlined the word "parties". As Your Honor has 23 noted, LB Australia is not a party to either one of the 24 adversary proceedings.

25 Secondly, you asked, Your Honor, whether LB Australia

1 had affirmatively sought to engage in ADR. And I believe there
2 have been discussions. As indicated, it was quite a while ago.
3 But in terms of anybody picking up the phone and saying let's 4 go into ADR now, I don't believe or at least to my knowledge, 5 that request has not been made.

6 Thirdly, Your Honor asked what will change over -- or 7 counsel for LB Australia asked what will change over the next
8 six months. I can report, Your Honor, that Lehman does expect 9 to file ADRs with respect to the Dante deals, in which LBA is a 10 noteholder, within the next quarter. So, as we indicated, we 11 have made substantial progress. Plan's done. We're focusing 12 our attention on this process. And we do expect things to 13 change within the next six months.

14 THE COURT: Okay.

15 MS. MARCUS: Thank you, Your Honor.

16 THE COURT: The joint motion of the debtors and the 17 creditors' committee to extend the stay is granted. The 18 objections lodged by counsel for the administrators or the LBA
19 estate are overruled. The reason for overruling the objection
20 is manifest. First, LBA really has no standing to object. LBA 21 is not a party to the pending litigation. And even the 22 somewhat strained reference to being within the class of 23 defendants in adversary 3547 does not get to the question of 24 standing in 3545 which is the Dante flip litigation.

25 The procedural posture of the case is such that LBA's

1 standing has been rejected on at least two prior occasions.
2 And it is pursuing its appellate rights and the court of 3 appeals at the moment with respect to earlier orders of the 4 Court denying the right to intervene in 3545.

5 On the merits, which I think is a better way to 6 address this, we can assume for the sake of argument solely 7 that LBA has rights that maybe align with a party and that LBA
8 is simply endeavoring by virtue of objecting to the extension 9 of the stay to prosecute in this court its argument that the 10 flip clause determinations previously made in both the 11 perpetual litigation and the Ballyrock litigation should be 12 reconsidered anew and, depending upon the outcome, become a 13 vehicle for further appellate review. That may well happen one 14 day. The district court, in considering and ultimately 15 rejecting an earlier appeal by LBA, noted that at some point it 16 is foreseeable that issues with respect to the flip-clause may 17 end up and revisited by the district court, the court of 18 appeals or perhaps even the Supreme Court although she did not 19 say that part.

20 The goal here is not to frustrate any party. The goal 21 here is to deal fairly with the interests of all creditors, 22 with the interest of the estate as a whole, and to maximize the 23 likelihood of favorable distributions to creditors under a 24 confirmed plan. No one disputes the efficacy and success of 25 the ADR program that has been undertaken to date. The results

1 really do speak for themselves.

2 Now as to the specifics of LBA's concern, the best and 3 most practical approach to dealing with the needs of the LBA 4 estate as those needs may be tied to the disposition of the 5 flip-clause issue, it would be for that issue to be the subject 6 of ongoing negotiations either negotiations simply between the 7 parties themselves or negotiations that are facilitated through 8 alternative dispute resolution procedures.

9 To state the obvious, in order for there to be a final 10 determination of the conflict between the bankruptcy court's 11 determination of ipso facto provisions of the U.S. Bankruptcy
12 Code and the UK court's determination of anti-deprivation
13 principles would require years of litigation. To the extent 14 that LBA is focused on a prompt determination of issues in its 15 own case, it needs to address this on a consensual basis and 16 come up with some pragmatic solution. That solution is not 17 litigating this to the Supreme Court although that might happen 18 one day. I predict if it does happen one day, it will be many 19 years from now. And the six-month extension of the global stay 20 of litigation will be by a rounding error in that calculation 21 of time.

22 For that substantive reason, regardless of standing,
23 the objection of LBA is overruled.

24 MS. MARCUS: Thank you, Your Honor. That brings us to 25 the end of the LBHI calendar. And I know that there's 1 something on the calendar for LBI.

2 THE COURT: Okay.

3 MR. SELIGMAN: Your Honor, may I be excused?

4 THE COURT: Yes.

5 MR. SELIGMAN: Thank you, Your Honor.

6 (Whereupon these proceedings were concluded at 11:03 a.m.)
